Community psychology studies the individuals' contexts within communities and the wider society, and the relationships of the individual to communities and society. Community psychologists seek to understand the quality of life of individuals within groups, organizations and institutions, communities, and society.

Demian: The Story of Emil Sinclair's Youth is a Bildungsroman by Hermann Hesse, first published in 1919; a prologue was added in 1960. Demian was first published under the pseudonym "Emil Sinclair", the name of the narrator of the story, but Hesse was later revealed to be the author.

This research examines relationships between individuals' perceived psychological safety and engagement in their work. Kahn (1990) effectively launched this stream with his qualitative studies, noted above, of conditions enabling people to personally engage or disengage at work. More recently, Kark & Carmeli (2009) examined the affective components of psychological safety and argued that ...
