Source Code Escrow Agreement - Legally Binding: Technology Legal Forms Book Paperback – May 9, 2017 by Julien Coallier (Author) Be the first to review this item See all 2 formats and editions Hide other formats and editions The Software Source Code Escrow Agreement calls for placing computer software programs and related materials in escrow for the benefit of licensee users of the programs. In certain situations, a program user is entitled to retrieve the source code and related materials from the escrow agent to ensure the continued operation of the program. A Escrow of Source Code clause in a software license agreement provides for an arrangement whereby source code (together with periodic updates) may be deposited with a trusted third party, allowing the code to be released to the Licensee in the event that the licensor is not able, or willing to support the software.
